Serra Pilgrimage Triumphs Over Elemental Jinx

With the performances at the Forest Theatre and at the Golden Bough tonight, the grand ball at Pebble Beach Lodge and the pilgrimage to Carmel Mission tomorrow comes the end of the Serra Pilgrimage celebration. It was a week of hectic activity, with the center of activity in Monterey.

Nowhere near the attendance that was anticipated when the plans were first made for the celebration were realized. This may be attributed to many causes, principle of which were the two big fires and unsettled weather conditions.

It is believed that enough money has been taken in through concessions and events to meet the expenses of the enterprise, thus covering those who furnished the $30,000 guarantee. A complete financial report will be made next week.

The opening ceremonies (and the motif of the entire celebration) at Carmel Mission last Sunday morning were dignified, impressive and picturesque. About two thousand people were present. First came the solemn high mass, conducted by Rev. R. M. Mestres, assisted by Father J. B. Roure of Mission La Pusissima Concepcion, Father Joseph O'Reilly of Mission San Juan Bautista, and Rev. Patrick O'Flynn of Mission San Luis Obispo.

A stately, solemn ceremony was the unveiling of the Serra sarcophagus. This masterpiece of Jo J. Mora's, located in the restored chapel alongside the main church building, was enshrouded by the flag of the United States, which was first removed and placed on high, then was lifted the colors of Spain by the Marquis de Viana, representing King Alfonso, and last was removed, by Monsignor Gleason and Father Mestres, the papal emblem. With a few words of tribute the representatives of other missions placed floral pieces on the sarcophagus. The procession from the church to the chapel was made while the Presidio band played "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and during the unveiling ceremonies "America" and "The Star-Spangled Banner" were sung. The assemblage without the chapel was addressed by Hon. Carmel Martin, Colonel James Breese, Marquis de Viana and Father Mestres.

Aside from the comedy element, the "Parade of the Three Occupations" on Monday was fairly representative of the Spanish, Mexican and American periods. The spectacle, however, would have been flat without the soldiers from the Monterey Presidio.

Dedication of the beautiful sarcophagus took place on Thursday. In the presence of church dignitaries, representatives of other missions and a host of visitors Archbishop Edward J. Hanna preached the dedication sermon. Jo J. Mora, the eminent sculptor, very feelingly expressed his joy over the completion of the great work, and thanked those who assisted him in his labors.

One of the most interesting events of the week was the arrival of the flagship Seattle on Wednesday morning, with Rear Admiral R. E. Cooptz aboard. The officers of the vessel were variously entertained by Colonel H. J. Breese, commandant of the Monterey Presidio, and Mayor B. F. Wright. The men of the ship swarmed over the peninsula, taking in Carmel Mission, the dances, sporting events and the Joy Zone.

Practically all the events scheduled for the week were carried out according to program—the "Pageant of Serra," "The Rose of the Rancho," the "Expedition of Anza," the dances and sporting events.

Carmel Art Students Exhibit Their Work

Now open and continuing for two weeks at the University Extension headquarters at 140 Kearney street, San Francisco, is the exhibition of student work done by those who gathered at Carmel this summer to take the work offered by the University of California extension division under the supervision of Blanding Sloan, artist of the theatre, painter and etcher. Among the students exhibiting are Dorothy Wilkinson of Berkeley, Moira Wallace, Belle Adams, Virginia Burton and J. M. Culbertson of Carmel, Salvatore Macri, San Francisco, Helen Sonniksen of San Jose, K. Matheson, Veva Burgon, Eleanor Widdis of San Francisco, Andrea Asbjornsen, Carmel.

This exhibition is given with the event of the closing of the Carmel art courses which have been moved to San Francisco and opened on October 15 under Sloan's supervision again with classes in etching, painting, and theatrical design.

Mr. Sloan, though a New York artist, is now identified with California, having lived here a year. His work in the theatre in New York has been with Henry Savage, Stuart Walker, George Foster Platt and for several seasons with the "Greenwich Village Follies." His teaching experience outside of that done for the university the past summer has been with the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts and as associate of George Senseney, noted color etcher. Sloan was chosen by Rabindranath Tagore to teach his protege, Mukul Chandra Dey. His Carmel classes have been unique in their method, which he calls "not teaching at all," but giving the "enthusiasm of confidence."

Can Anyone Place This Young Lady?

Pacific Grove, Calif.

Editor of Carmel Newspaper,

I am not acquainted in Carmel, and I hope you will do me the favor of placing this letter in the hands of the persons whom it would be most likely to concern. I thank you very much for the trouble.

I am a young lady of Pacific Grove, and I have heard that in Carmel is offered a fine opportunity for persons who are dramatically inclined. I have also heard there are many little theatres where plays are given at certain times, and that said theatres are always looking for new talent. Is this so?

I would very much like to join a dramatic company there, but I do not know to whom to apply, when, or where, and what qualifications are necessary. I presume it is not necessary to be a professional in order to be able to join and take part. I have some experience on the stage, in San Francisco, and have also been in moving pictures. I am a tall, sympathetic type, and have a pleasing low voice, which carries well. I also have talent, and a hard-working spirit, and, of course, I enjoy the work.

I am not in Pacific Grove here all the time, but spend at least half a year here and the rest in San Francisco and San Mateo. While here I would like to continue my stage work, right along, if I can be placed in one of the companies working in Carmel.

Kindly let me hear from you as soon as convenient, and thanking you, I am,

Sincerely.

Reconstruction Begins on Hotel Del Monte

Re-building of the recently burned Hotel Del Monte has started with the construction of a dining room lobby grill room with a dance floor and lounge rooms. A large corps of workmen will rush the buildings to completion for the Thanksgiving celebration and will be ready for the Christmas and New Year's events.

The new dining room will be located between the west wing and the kitchen. It will be informal but attractive with windows on all sides. The plans call for appropriate decorations and a hardwood dancing floor. Below the dining room will be a grill with a dance floor, also available for moving picture shows, banquets, etc.

The two wings and the dining room will be connected by a runway entirely enclosed with a green and gray striped awning. In fair weather the runway will be open at points and will be lined at the sides with potted palms and plants. At night it will be brilliantly lighted.

The lobby will adjoin the west wing, above which there will be two stories which will provide sun porches and three or four rooms for informal gatherings, cards, etc.

Between the kitchen, which was only partly destroyed and is now ready for business, and the east wing there will be a delightful patio protected on three sides. This patio has an attractive lawn dotted with trees. The grill will open onto this patio and will be used for teas. The furniture and lighting is being carefully planned, so that while the structures will be informal, they will be comfortable and delightful for visitors.

Rapid progress is being made on the plans for the fireproof structure of Spanish architecture that will replace the burned building. Carl S. Stanley, manager of the hotel, and Jean Juillard, assistant manager, have left with Architect Lewis Hobart on a visit to all the modern hotels in the United States in order to determine upon the improvements and features for the new structure.

Greetings to Carmel From Old Spain

Madrid, Spain, Sept. 20, 1924.

Dear Mr. Overstreet.

I feel it incumbent upon me to write you from Spain, to send Carmel greetings from the once mother country.

During my week here I have visited the greatest centers of art and literature. My visit to the Escorial, where is situated the greatest temple of death in the world, was exceedingly interesting.

Spain revels, as of yore, in wonderful music and characteristic dancing. I have secured some of her best music and procured a splendid pair of castanets.

I attended a bull-fight; the arena or Plaza de Toros was one brilliant sight of colors and moving humanity.

The architecture in Spain predominates with the tiled roofs. I can now see why California possesses the same.

Though I cannot be present at the fiesta in honor of Padre Serra, allow me through your columns to greet Carmel from Madrid. I have already traveled through England, Scotland, Ireland and France, and have several countries to visit before returning to good U. S. A. The more one sees of Europe, the more one loves U. S. A. There is a reason.

Sincerely,

A. L. VAN HOUTTE.

Our Foreign Circulation

As the constitution follows the flag, so the Pine Cone follows our Carmelites when they go abroad. Mr. and Mrs. George Seideneck and Dr. Amelia L. Gates get the paper in Germany, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Botke in Holland, Miss Janet Cobbe in Ireland, Prof. and Mrs. F. E. Lloyd in Canada.

National Forest Open

District Ranger C. A. Chamberlain announces that the Santa Barbara National Forest has been reopened to the public. Camp fire permits can be secured at the old stands from forest officers and at the forest office in King City. The opening order was effective October 9.

Carmelites Surprised

Carmelites got a pleasant shock on Thursday afternoon when a wireless was received from San Jose announcing the marriage there of Mrs. Vivian Dingley and Paul J. Denny. This is the culmination of a romance which began about a year ago, when Mr. Denny was connected with Pine Inn and Mrs. Dingley was an officer of the local humane organization which met in that hostelry. Mr. Denny is now the local representative of the Chevrolet company. The couple will make their home in the Elsie Lincoln Benedict residence at Carmel Highlands.

Coolidge-Dawes Meeting in Carmel

Carmel is to have a big political meeting next Monday afternoon. The Flying Squadron of the Coolidge-Dawes Republican League is scheduled to arrive here at 3:30. Arrangements have been made to erect a platform on Ocean avenue opposite the Pine Cone office.

H. F. Uttley, director of the squadron, sends word that the speakers selected are Paul F. Clark and Robert Littler. R. C. DeYoe will preside.

In the evening there will be a meeting in Monterey.

Sojourn in Carmel Inspires Fine Poem

Mr. and Mrs. Will E. Chapin of Hollywood recently spent a few days at Carmel Highlands. Both are well known throughout the state, Mr. Chapin as an artist and illustrator known for his work as a cartoonist on the Los Angeles Times for twelve years. Mrs. Chapin is better known by her pen name of Lou. V. Chapin and is the author of several books of poems and volumes of historical interest. Both deeply enjoyed the beauties of our coast and Mrs. Chapin has expressed her appreciation in the following poem:

CARMEL

When I went down to Carmel,
I lifted up mine eyes,
To where the hills, in glory,
Caught the blessing of the skies,
And their promise sought and found me,
And my help was in their word,
And they wrapped their peace around me,
Like a garment from the Lord.

When I went down to Carmel,
I carried all my grief,
And the blue sea took and bore it,
And gave my soul relief.
And perfect Beauty met me,
And led me to the height,
Where God walked with me all the day
And guarded all the night.

When I went down to Carmel,
I had forgot my prayers,
But the pine-trees taught me orisons,
And solemn hymning airs,
And they sang to me of childhood,
And of my youth's far days,
Till my heart sang too, and chanted,
A joyful song of praise.

My soul now speeds to Carmel,
In every quiet hour,
And feels again her ministry,
And all her healing power.
And since my spirit fares to her,
Where e'er my feet may stray,
I know, at last, to Carmel,
They'll surely find their way.

And when from lovely Carmel,
I sail beyond the sun,
With all my journeys ended,
And all my labors done,
No Heaven can be fairer
Than her dear image pressed
Upon the earth, at Carmel,
And mirrored in my breast.

Mrs. Mary Chapin had as week-end guest her daughter, Mrs. Florence Geldert from San Francisco.

Mrs. W. N. Woodson is a guest of Mrs. Marshall De Motte at her cottage on Scenic Drive at the foot of Twelfth street.

Edward J. Sullivan of Los Angeles, politician, diplomat, writer, man of affairs, was a Carmel sojourner this week.

Dean and Mrs. A. W. Noel Porter of Trinity Church, San Jose, spent a day in Carmel this week as the guest of Mrs. John R. Chace.

Actors who appeared in Carmel last summer who are now in New York include Morris Ankrum, Phyllis Blake and Elsa Heyman. Dan Totheroh is also knocking around Broadway.

The veteran Shakespearean actor, Frederick Warde, who is now in the east, writes John B. Jordan that he expects to visit Carmel early in January. A series of entertainments is in prospect.

Josephine Rand Smith of Palo Alto, one of the best authorities on California mission architecture, was guest of the L. S. Slevins this week. Together with Mr. Slevin, Mrs. Smith went on several photograph-taking expeditions.

Mrs. Ida Mansfield Wilson was called to Piedmont on Thursday by the death of her mother, Mrs. Fanny M. Lawson. She will return this evening. The subject of her new thought lecture tomorrow afternoon is "Resurrection Morn."

Winter Music Season Opens October 26

The Theatre of the Golden Bough will open its fall and winter season of Sunday evening musical events on October 26 with a recital by Radiana Pazmor, one of the finest contraltos on the concert stage today.

Known all over the world, from France to Australia, as Pazmor, she is to us in California still "one of the Pasmore sisters," and it is not easy for us, her home friends, to bring ourselves to the realization that she has come back to us not merely heightened in musical stature but actually one of the great singers of the world.

After her recent concert in San Francisco, Redfern Mason, one of California's foremost musical critics, commended the singer most highly. Mr. Mason's review will be published in these columns next Saturday.

European comment on the singer follows:

From the Monde Musical, Paris: "Across the barries of the Russian language, making us feel the meaning of every work, Mlle. Pazmor, after the Russian works, sang some of the Poems Arabes of Louis Aubert, accompanied by the composer. It is impossible to describe the waves of sorrow and joy which her beautiful deep voice sent over her audience."

From Le Figaro, Paris: "Endowed with a contralto which is clear and fresh, and articulating with precision, Mlle. Pazmor adds to these qualities a sound musical taste and a keen sensitiveness. . . . Therefore, the interpretation of works so diverse as those of Bach, Debussy, Schumann and Aubert, as given by this singer, were of real interest."

The European edition of the New York Herald: "Miss Radiana Pazmor is a contralto who has few equals even in so great a musical center as Paris."

From the Berliner Tageblatt: "Radiana Pazmor sang with lovely mezzo contralto voice and a captivating delivery."

The Allgemeine Musikzeitung, Berlin: "In Radiana Pazmor, whose three older sisters, the Pasmore Trio, a number of years ago made a fine impression here in the realm of chamber music, we find a contralto of high vocal and artistic culture. The voice is resonant and of great flexibility."

The London Daily Mail: "A new singer, Mlle. Radiana Pazmor, uttered these recitasives (Poems Arabes of Louis Aubert) with striking ability and poetic sense."

The London Telegraph: "This lady sings well. Two arias from the Bach B minor mass were phrased and enunciated with dignity; three seldom heard songs of Beethoven likewise; and in others of Aubert and of Faure she showed command of great variety of expression."

On the Sunday following the Pazmor recital, the program of which will be published in our next issue, Anna Louise David, noted harpist, will play, assisted by our charming local soprano, Roberta Arment Leitch.

THE GROWING USE OF RADIO

Signor Marconi, speaking the other day in Rome, promised that before long speech will be heard by radio from a given station all over the world at once, a promise that may well thrill the 3,000,000 American homes already equipped with radio apparatus, and add impetus to the onward rush of an industry that is reported to have grown from sales amounting to a trivial $2,000,000 in 1920, to $120,000,000 in 1923, and by estimate to $350,000,000 in 1924. Assuming 24,000,000 as the approximate number of homes in the United States, a statistician writing in Radio News says that nearly 13,000,000 of them have automobiles, 9,000,000 have phonographs, and 3,000,000 have radio sets. Evidently a home without either of these possessions is hardly to be considered a home at all: it is merely such a place as human beings ate and slept in in the nineteenth century.

DEVELOP A COMMUNITY SPIRIT

In every city, town and hamlet we may find strong competition in business, differences in politics and religion, social rivalries and personal antagonisms—and these will probably always exist to a greater or less extent.

But there is one common ground on which all should be willing to meet, laying aside personal grievances and prejudices—that is, where the common welfare of "our town" is concerned.

In other words, no matter how much we may disagree and fight among ourselves, we should stand up for our city against all opposition. This sort of teamwork is what makes a city worth while, insures its progress and a better understanding among its people.

By joining with an enemy or rival in some movement for the betterment of the community, we often find him to be a pretty good sort of a fellow, after all.

Development of a strong community spirit is essential to community advancement. No personal feelings should be permitted to stand in its way. Loyalty and teamwork are the things that count.

Vivisection as John Galsworthy Views It

Now that the Vivisection Investigation League is working so hard to have the Anti-Vivisection bill passed, and much written data is beng distributed, it seems timely to publish this letter from John Galsworthy, which was some time ago published in the New York Herald:

"Whatever one's beliefs concerning the whole question of experiments on the living body, the vivisection of dogs is a strange anomaly. Even if it be granted that the dog, by reason of its intelligence and nervous organization, is more fitted than other animals for certain vivisectional experiments (tho I believe this is disputed), there are yet basic considerations which make such treatment of the dog a scandalous betrayal. Man, no doubt, first bound or bred the dog to his service and companionship for purely utilitarian reasons; but we of today, by immemorial tradition and a sentiment that has become almost as inherent in us as the sentiment toward children, give him a place in our lives utterly different from that which we accord to any other animal (not even excepting cats), a place that he has won for himself throughout the ages, and that he ever increasingly deserves. He is by far the nearest thing to man on the face of the earth, the one link that we have spiritually with the animal creation; the one dumb creature into whose eyes we can look and tell pretty well for certain what emotion, even what thought, is at work within; the one dumb creature which—not as a rare exception, but almost always—steadily feels the sentiments of love and trust. This special nature of the dog is our handiwork, a thing instilled into him through thousands of years of intimacy, care and mutual service, deliberately and ever more carefully fostered; extraordinarily precious even to those of us who profess to be without sentiment. It is one of the prime factors of our daily lives in all classes of society—this mute partnership with dogs; and—we are still vivisecting them!"

(From "A Sheaf," 1916, pp. 81-2)

"What we would not do with our own dogs we have no right to do with dogs that have not had the luck to be ours. It is not so much a question of love of dogs as of decency and good faith in men."—From "A Sheaf," p. 83.

The letter ends with these words: "You have my permission to quote what seems to you suitable from my letter in 'The Vivisection of Dogs' in my volume, 'A Sheaf,' published by Scribners. Yours truly, John Galsworthy."

"Boatswain's Monument—Lord Byron's Dog

"Near this spot are deposited the remains of one who possessed beauty without vanity, strength without insolence, courage without ferocity, and all the virtues of man without his vices."

Short Bits Relating to The Seven Arts

Intimate Play for Carmel

"You and I," the comedy which Maurice Browne will direct (and play) at the Theatre of the Golden Bough on October 31st and November 1st, is a play composed, as befits its title, of extraordinarily likeable people. And people whom we know—naturally enough—pretty well. Human people. It is not in the least aesthetic. It boasts no spectacular pageantry, no brilliant display of color, no novel or stupendous stage setting. The people are not unusual, nor do they behave in any way out of the ordinary.

When we look at the stage, we forget that we are seeing a play; we feel rather as if we were spying through a keyhole on an intimate family scene, as if indeed we were taking part in that scene in our own family, where it has been played so often. They are real people, "You and I," and they talk and act like real people, mixing their laughter with their tears. Best of all, they are dramatic. We human beings are. As the author of "You and I" know well, this life is not merely full of, but is the stuff of which all true and significant drams are made.

The characters in his comedy are characters in action; impatiently he throws aside all the fripperies and ferbelows which clutter the stage today, and gives us nothing but ourselves—decent, kind, fallible, well-intentioned people, making doubtless a deuce of a mess of things, but managing somehow to "carry on," and with a smile. Marey yields to his suppressed craving to paint and and throws business and caution to the winds; Nancy, "the ideal wife," as Geoffrey Nichols terms her, always by his side, guides constantly — and, for the most part, silentay; Geoff himself, the popular novelist, is "a veritable flea for travel." At 20, "the incendiary age," they had planned to devote their lives to Art with a big A, but, . . . somehow, well the play is the story of that "but."

And into its shaping step those who, often unknown to themselves, shape the destinies of you and me; Etta, the artist's model (who but a maid could so cleverly masquerade as a lady? Etta is "the big kick" of the play); G. T. Warren, the typical T.B.M., blustering, a "good fellow," and as tough as beef in Carmel; and Ronny and Ricky, the kids. Yes, they shape our destinies: the kids—these youngsters of today who romp and jazz and talk the modernest of modern slang; these youngsters who have flippancy for their code of life . . . until that situation arises which calls for the deep seriousness under their veneer to become uncovered; then, the flapper throws off her self-defensive armour and shows herself the same stuff as were her mother and her grandmother before her, and your mother and grandmother, and mine—woman.

And don't forget Genevieve! Around her centers much important action. Sphinx-like by nature, she keeps her thoughts to herself. To hear her talk is — well, in this world one rarely experiences such an event.

Yes, "You and I," as Browne and his company will play it, may, it can be well imagined, cause a riffle or two in Carmel.

Welcome to Our City

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Reynolds have reached Carmel and have taken the Emery cottage for the winter. Steve, known to the fiction-reading public as Stephen Allen Reynolds, is an old hand at the writing game. He originated and organized the Adventurers' Club of New York, of which our own Bob Ritchie is a charter member, and has been most everywhere and done most everything that a venturesome man can do.

When asked how he liked Carmel, and on request to do a short or long Pine Needle, Mr. Reynolds responded with the following:

"Yes, we like Carmel, especially after a two-inch fall of snow at Tahoe last week. I write a bit, 'tis true, mostly for the soft-paper magazines. Went to the lake to camp and write. It was so beautiful there one could but gaze. Here, midst the matchless and diversified scenery, I feel moved to real work. Poetry? Who can tell? The very trees dribble it. The surf reeks of it. Even the egg plant has its humble song. How's this for a starter:

Snow drove us from Tahoe,
But we like Carmel well;
We tried out Los Angeles,
Found it hotter'n the deuce.

Pine Needles

Mrs. Margaret Cramner will spend the winter in New York, having departed recently.

The F. S. Shorts of Fresno are in their picturesque new cottage on the Eighty-acre tract for ten days.

Miss Eleanor Burnett has returned from Cape Neddick, Maine, where she was the guest of Mrs. Alice Comins for several weeks.

Charles McAllister, who played the leading male role in "Tidings Brought to Mary" in San Francisco some time ago, is making his home here for the winter with Maurice Browne.

Mrs. E. W. Freeman is en route from New York to Carmel via the Panama Canal. She will visit here with her sister, Miss Mary Wilkeson, before proceeding to Palm Springs.

The Dr. J. P. Sandholdt cottage in Monterey has been purchased by Mrs. Margaret Kilpatrick of Carmel Highlands. The new owner will oversee the alteration of the dwelling before leaving for Europe with Miss Ada Howe Kent.

A two months' visit in the east will take Mrs. John B. Jordan and her sister, Mrs. Anne Larkey, to Chicago, New York, Washington and Boston. Most of their time, however, will be spent in the last named city, where Mrs. Larkey's son is a student in the Harvard Medical school. J. B. Jordan's sister, Mrs. A. L. McCreary, is a guest at Pine Inn.

W. H. Farley and wife were in Stockton from Saturday to Monday last. Mr. Farley was in attendance on the conference of the master cleaners, and qualified as a master cleaner. The Farley establishment here is equipped with much of the most modern machinery.

Miss Sarah Redington, dramatic critic of Santa Barbara, was a guest of Miss Frances Taylor here this week.

Former Mayor G. A. Dougherty of Salinas was a Carmel visitor last Monday. He is a strong advocate of the election of Coolidge.

Mrs. A. Mellor, daughter of Richard W. Hoagland and sister of Mrs. Percy Parkes, is on her way to Europe. She will winter in Rome.

The Misses Friant, who have been occupying their cottage on San Carlos for the past month, have returned to their home in San Jose.

Yep, it's true. Rem and Yode are back here again. They arrived from Santa Barbara at midnight last Monday and expect to remain here all winter. But you never can tell.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Lange are the proud parents of a son, born in Pacific Grove last Tuesday. The little fellow has been named William. The father is an employee of M. J. Murphy.

The tenure of office of the three local special policemen who have been on duty this week ends tonight. Frank Lee, R. F. Ohm and John Giem were the men who wore the star of authority.

The trustees of this city have accepted the bid of Stroud Brothers and Seabrook, Bakersfield contractors, for the sewer work in this city. Their bid, $41,465, was the lowest of five bids submitted.

There will be two high-class theatrical events in Carmel tonight. At the beautiful Theatre of the Golden Bough the third and last performance of "The Nursery Maid of Heaven" is to be given, and at the world-famous Forest Theatre "The Rose of the Rancho" will wind up the Serra Pilgrimage celebration.

A Vote for COOLIDGE Means Continued Prosperity

The theory of a popular government is that if everybody votes for what he believes to be his own interests, the affairs of the government will be carried on in the interest of the majority

While one frequently hears it said that there is little difference between the great political parties, experience has shown that every time the administration of the affairs of this government has been taken from one party and given to the other, there has been a pronounced and decided change either for the better or for the worse.

Immediately before the war broke out in 1914 and after the Democratic tariff measure had been in force only six months, there were four million men in this country out of employment.

Under the present administration all these men have and now are fully employed, and in the receipt of wages which a few years ago were unheard of.

The products of the farm bring remunerative prices caused by the operation of a protective tariff by which the great American market is held for our own people.

There are three questions which naturally present themselves in determining how you should vote:

1—Are you CERTAIN that a change in the administration will give you more employment?

2—Are you CERTAIN that a change in administration will increase the wages you are now receiving, or will even keep them at the present figure?

3—Are you CERTAIN that a change in administration will increase the value of your farm products?

With the present administration continued in power, there would seem to be every prospect of continued business prosperity and of continued opportunity of employment for American labor at remunerative wages. What better could we expect?
